127.0.0.1:5500/3-google1998/index.html

Google! BETA

Search the web using Google!

[Google Search] [I'm feeling lucky]

Special Searches	Help!	Get Google!
Stanford Search	About Google!	updates monthly:
Linux Search	Company Info	your e-mail
	Google! Logos	[Subscribe] Archive

Copyright ©1998 Google Inc.

127.0.0.1:5500/3-google1998/help.html

Google! BETA Help

Add a URL to Google!
Add a Google! search box to your web page

Google queries are simple yet powerful

To enter a query into Google, just type in a few descriptive keywords and hit "search." That's it! If you need them, however, we also provide a few advanced search operators.

- NEW! The "" operator.

  Google automatically prefers pages where the query terms are found in close proximity. However, sometimes the only relevant pages are those where some or all of the query words occur as a phrase. You can enclose words in double-quotes (`"like this"`) to force the words to appear together in all returned documents.

- NEW! The - operator.

  Sometimes it is helpful to choose words to exclude from a search. That is, you want all relevant result pages except those containing a certain word. We support this "not" functionality with the "-" operator. Simply prefix your query word with a - (`-like -this`) to make Google ignore all pages containing that word.

- Automatic AND.

  Google only supports "and" queries. That is, it only returns pages that include all the query terms. The + operator, which enforces "and" behavior on some search engines, is unnecessary on Google (though it can be used to include stopwords; see below).

Do more than query

The results of a Google search do a lot to help point you toward the right result: the numbers in the results help you figure out result quality, and the query word-sensitive content helps you figure out what the pages are about.

The results can also be used for further exploration of the web. Click on the bar graph at the beginning of the result, and see what pages link to this page .
Add a URL to Google

Add a URL here and we will likely add your Web page to our index the next time we crawl. Note that it may be quite a while before we get around to your page.

URL:

Comments:

Add URL

Copyright ©1999 Google Inc.

Linking to Google! BETA

If you would like to allow Google searches from your web page, we welcome you to use the code snippet below for that purpose.

You can make any reasonable modification to the snippet, such as taking out the centering code, making the text box wider or narrower, or changing the background color (note, however, that the background for the Google logo is white, not transparent).

Here is the code:

```
<!-- Search Google! -->
<center>
<FORM method=GET action=http://www.google.com/search>
<TABLE bgcolor="#FFFFFF"><tr><td>
<A HREF="http://www.google.com/">
<IMG SRC="http://www.google.com/logos/google40.jpg" border="0" ALT="Google!" align="middle"></A>
<INPUT TYPE=text name=q size=31 maxlength=255 value="">
<INPUT type=submit name=sa VALUE="Google Search">
</TABLE>
</FORM>
</center>
<!-- Search Google! -->
```

and here is what it looks like:

Google! [   ] Google Search

If you prefer, instead of using the above search box, you can place a link to Google on your web page. accordion have a lovely assortment of pictures that you can use for this purpose; however, you may feel free to use the picture of your choice.

Copyright ©1999 Google Inc.
Google! Inc.

The Company

Google Inc. was founded in 1998 by Sergey Brin and Larry Page to make it easier to find high-quality information on the web. The company is based on three years of research in web search and data mining done by the founders in the Stanford University Computer Science Department. Google Inc.'s headquarters are located in scenic downtown Palo Alto, California.

Google Inc. is not at present a publicly traded company, and we are currently unable to speculate on whether or when our privately-held status might change.

The Name

10^100 (a gigantic number) is a googol, but we liked the spelling "Google" better. We picked the name "Google" because our goal is to make huge quantities of information available to everyone. And it sounds cool and has only six letters.

Contacts

Business development	bizdev@google.com
For job seekers	jobs@google.com
For the press, or to notify us of new stories mentioning Google	press@google.com

---
Google! Stickers

If you would like to include a link to Google on your webpage, feel free to download one of the following "stickers" of our main logo.

25% (87 x 28) Google!

40% (140 x 45) Google!

50% (175 x 56) Google!

60% (210 x 67) Google!
Here is our main logo full size, created using GIMP. If you want to hack on it, here is the XCF file.

Google! BETA